Nekoosa and Grand Rapids.

One thousand fans saw the Tigers take Nekoosa into camp Sunday. The day was warm and sultry, the wind, however, blew a perfect gale and swept the diamond dust in heavy clouds into the bleachers making it impossible for the catcher to see the ball for brief intervals.

For five innings it was a battle royal, Pelot pulling out of several bad places, by plucking masterly ball. In the first inning with a man on third and one on second, and no one out, he did not allow even a scratch hit. His team went to pieces behind him and during the remaining innings the runs commenced to pile up.

Fahrner pitched good steady ball all through, made 2 hits and scored 2 runs. Dolin and Pelot received severe ankle sprains.

Following is the score in detail:

Lost Ties on Railroad.

William Moe, who resides near City Point, was quite severely injured on Friday while attempting to board a train on the St. Paul track in this city. He went to the depot about one o'clock on Friday and tried to board a freight train that was passing there at that time, but he missed his hold and was thrown to the ground in such a manner that one wheel passed over the toes on one foot injuring him in such a manner that upon examination it was found necessary to amputate them.

He was taken to Hiverson hospital as soon as possible when medical assistance was at once summoned and the operation performed, and it is expected that he will suffer no inconvenience after his wounds have healed, outside of the loss of the toes as noted above. When questioned as to how the accident happened Mr. Moe was unable to give any accurate account of just what did occur, and it was quite evident that it was all over before he realized that he had been hurt.

Improvement at Calvary Cemetery.

H. E. Perry, landscape artist for the Henry Lake & Sons Co., Nursery at Black River Falls, was in the city last week and on Saturday completed the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers for a "beauty spot" located in about the center of Calvary cemetery, the work being ordered by the Cemetery Association.

The dimensions of this beauty spot are forty by one hundred and twenty feet and is arranged in a very artistic manner, a group of trees, shrubs and evergreens, varying in height, being planted in each corner with borders of perennial flowers.

Across the center is the word "Calvary" which is bedded in Arabic Alpina, a low growing flower, which in early spring is a solid mass of beautiful white blossoms.

Below this is a large cross twelve by twenty feet planted in Phlox Subulata in two colors, the center being in pink and the edges in white.

It is thought this will turn out a great success as Mr. Perry reports the conditions fine and it will also improve the looks of the cemetery greatly.

ELECTRIC ROAD TALK

Four Gentlemen from Stevens Point Meet Business Men from this City.

On Saturday afternoon Messrs. Hanna, Pfeiffer, Sickelsted and Achen came over from Stevens Point to meet some of our business men for the purpose of discussing the conditions of the electric road franchise which has been published in the local papers, and which has also been published at Stevens Point, and which is the franchise that the promoters of the proposed electric line intend to ask from the city.

The attendance from this city was not large, owing perhaps to the fact that it was Saturday afternoon, a time when our merchants are kept pretty close to their places of business and are not able to get out to attend public meetings.

The franchise was taken up and read one section at a time, and was discussed informally by those present, and some things seemed to call for objections from both cities, at the Stevens Point delegation were inclined to be a trifle more liberal to have the railroad company than were the people from this city.

One of the objections discussed quite freely was that in section four of the proposed franchise relating to the hauling of freight over the line of the electric road. It seemed to be the unanimous verdict of those present that if the line were used for hauling freight that certain hours during the night should be designated for such purposes, and that it was not the desire of the people to have any electric or other road hauling trains of freight cars run through the city during the business hours of the day.

Another objection in section one was that the franchise be confined to the building of an electric line exclusively, and that the words "for other use" be stricken out. As the power be stricken out the present franchise stands at the present time the company could construct a steam railway thru the city the same as any other railway that runs into town and haul trains of cars through the principal streets of the city.

Another matter was the clause in section ten, which reads, "But said grants shall not be required to repair or maintain any portions of the streets or sidewalks except as provided in this section." In other cities where there are car lines it is the duty of the railway company to keep the road between the tracks in proper repair, and paved in the manner that the city may suggest. This part of the street is owned and practically controlled by the railway company and there is no reason why they should not take proper care of it.

Another matter that seems to be against the wishes of those at the meeting and the people at large is that the franchise calls for the use of the bridge that crosses the river at this point. It is the unanimous opinion that the present bridge now has all the traffic it can properly handle, and at times there is even more than can be handled properly, and nobody thinks that an electric car line could cross the structure with any degree of success. If the electric railway wants to cross the river at this point, it will either have to construct a new bridge, or else connect with the city in constructing a bridge that can be used both as a foot and railway bridge, at some other point than the one now occupied by the present bridge.

Another matter that came up for discussion was the length of time that a franchise should be granted for. Some thought that twenty years should be the maximum, and others thought that twenty-five years should be granted. The Stevens Point delegation explained that the promoters of the scheme expected to interest eastern capitalists in the matter, and that if the time was not made a long one it would be impossible for them to get the money. There is no doubt considerable truth in this as it would be pretty hard to float bonds that were based on a fifteen or twenty year franchise.

The promoters who ask for the franchise admit that it is a very liberal one, but state that this is necessary in order to get capital interested in the scheme.

The discussion took up a good part of the afternoon and it was proposed to hold a meeting between representatives of the two cities after the matter had been considered by the different cities. The matter had been before the council at Stevens Point, and it is expected that it will come up again this week, and at the last meeting of the council in this city the matter was referred to a committee for consideration with instructions to report at the next meeting of that body, which will be held in June. It is possible that another meeting of citizens that time in order to this city before the matter more fully and discuss the sentiment of the people in general on the matter.

State Secretary Coming.

Mr. Hare, secretary of the anti-saloon league will address the congregation in the Methodist church on Sunday morning and in the evening will address a union meeting at the opera house. An invitation is extended to the public to attend.

William Uthmeier, one of the jury-men on the Neenahfield case, was taken ill in court on Tuesday and was excused from service by the judge.

Mr. Uthmeier was suffering from heart trouble.

Murder Case On.

The case of the state against Albert Neenahfield was commenced at the court house on Tuesday morning, but there has been considerable trouble experienced in securing a jury, and the consequence was that the entire list of regular jurymen was exhausted before twelve men were secured to try the case. The sheriff started out on Tuesday afternoon to secure an extra list of men and it is probable that a jury will be secured today.

The conditions surrounding this crime are familiar to most of our people, Neenahfield having struck his brother-in-law with an iron candlestick during a saloon row at Nekoosa, the man subsequently dying from the injuries received.

Helped the Marshfield Fair.

Among the appropriations made by the county board last Wednesday was one of $200 for the Marshfield agricultural fair. There was some opposition to the movement, but it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the fair was a thing that should be encouraged and was a good thing for the county at large. So long as the people down at this end of the county do not care to promote a fair it is no more than right that the county as a whole should turn in and assist the town that has the enterprise to hold such an attraction.

Low Rates to Pacific Coast.

Very low rates for the round trip will be in effect to San Francisco and Los Angeles daily to May 15th, June 8th to 15th and June 23d to July 5th, also to Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and North Pacific Coast points from June 20th to July 25th. Occupying New Store.

J. R. Hagan, the east side furniture man, has removed to his new quarters in the Bradford block and is now nicely settled and ready to take care of his customers. His new quarters give him a great deal more room than he had before and he has arranged that he is able to display his wares in a very nice manner, and when everything is in the shape that he wants it he will have an ideal furniture store. He has also considerable space on the ground floor for storage purposes, which will prove a great advantage to him in this business.

The members of the Christian Endeavor will serve a supper at the Congregational church before this evening, to which the public is cordially invited. A program has been prepared for the occasion, which will be rendered during the evening.

GREAT TRIAL ON

Chiefs of the Western Federation of Miners, Accused of the Murder of Former Governor Steuenberg of Idaho, Soon to Face a Jury—State Is Divided on Question of Their Guilt or Innocence—Immense Fund Raised for Defense—Fight Promises to Be Long and Bitter.

Boise, Idaho. No one living in the Rocky mountain region can have an unimpaired opinion regarding the Steuenberg murder trial. This is the most important event that has occurred in western America in recent years, and it is a trial that has divided the entire western country with its and has against him. This is the trial of a man who has been accused of the murder of a former governor of Idaho, and it is a trial that has divided the entire western country with its and has against him. This is the trial of a man who has been accused of the murder of a former governor of Idaho, and it is a trial that has divided the entire western country with its and has against him.

The prosecution has been made a labor of love throughout the trial. For a year and more months have been held, ending with a sensational series in all the large cities a few weeks ago, in which the prosecution was declared a success. The purpose of these proceedings was to obtain money with which to conduct the defense, and over a quarter of a million dollars has been raised.

There is tremendous interest in the trial all through the west, even in portions where there are no mines or miners. It is most talked of in labor circles. There the spirit regarding the trial is good. All the labor unions ask in a fair and speedy trial. They have reserved their judgment and are willing to stand by the judgment of any jury.

Miners depends on the validity of the "confession" of Harry Orchard and its power to convict.

The complaint that two terms of court has passed before the cases were brought to trial was made the basis of a motion to have the case dismissed a few weeks ago. The motion was overruled. Senator Dorr, arguing that the trial could not previously have been held under the laws of Idaho, as habeas corpus proceedings were pending in the supreme court.

The defense then petitioned for change of venue from Caldwell to Boise. This was granted by Judge Wood. The defense arguing not to bring up the question of change of venue again. Judge Wood then set the trial of Haywood for May 9 in Boise.

About this trial centers the greatest interest, as the fate of Haywood will decide the fate of the others, since all three of the indicted men were equally implicated by Harry Orchard.

Could Not Have Trial Earlier. The prosecution has been generally criticized for allowing a whole year to pass without bringing these men to trial.

CO-OPERATION IN COAL.

Independent Mines Are to Supply the Consumers.

Ashland.—The successful operation of the Northwestern Cooperative Coal & Dock company and the starting of the work here in the coal industry is a great deal of interest throughout the northwest, for this is the first time in the history of this northwestern region that an effort has been made to supply coal to consumers on a cooperative basis.

Under the plan of organization the six northwestern states, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska are each to have one director, and the first annual meeting for this purpose is to be held in Ashland in June, at which time excursions are to be run from various points in the northwest to this city.

The company is organized to secure for its stockholders coal at the lowest possible price, without the intervention of any organized monopoly, wholesaler, jobber or retailer.

Frank took two of the fish to work at the Blon factory for a day's outing, took fishing tackle with them. The boy went to Mosquito creek and fell into the creek. The dead body was found where the creek was but three feet deep. It appears that he fell backward into the water, and that death immediately resulted from the shock, as the amount of water in his lungs was small.

Holder for Unruly Ewes. Device Which Will Prove Convenient at Lambing Time.

We have a plan for making a handy farm device for the holding of unruly ewes during lambing time, which we think will be of interest to others. Write a correspondent of Prairie Farmer.

This holder is used by us for holding unruly ewes. We had a couple of very unruly ewes last winter which would not own their lambs. We wanted to save the lambs, as they were very fine ones and we resorted to holding the ewes, but as this took considerable of our time we devised a holder which holds a sheep so far more securely than two men can by hand.

We can place a ewe securely in this holder and go about doing other chores and the lambs will take care of themselves. This holder might be of very valuable to any farmer who has unruly ewes. We would especially recommend its use in small flocks.

We saved all of our lambs last winter, which was quite a task, as they were born early in the winter when the weather was quite cold.

We make sheep holders of old fence boards, which did very well, as we had this material plenty around here, but when the lambs tried to suck they let us know that our device was not complete. We therefore resorted to iron rods, as shown in the cut and marked K and L. These are made adjustable for different sizes of sheep as shown in the cut by three rings which represent the holes which were bored through the corner posts.

We used the axle of an old children's playing wagon. These axles answered the purpose very nicely as they were just the right length. We then sawed two boards 34 inches long, marked B in the cut. These were placed to the inside of the corner posts. Then we attached a portion across the front end with a portion marked C in the cut, sawed off so as to give plenty of room for the sheep's head, enough to hold any of our sheep. In starting the construction we began with two boards, B and C, about 22 inches long, to which we nailed the bottom boards, which are 34 inches long. We made four posts in the cut, 26 inches long, which we attached to the bottom or floor, one on each corner, as shown in the cut. These posts being marked A in the sketch. We then proceeded with our work and attached three boards at ends on bottom, one in front and two in the rear. These we thought would make the ewe stand in proper position.

We next attached an old hinge to a board for the rear end of the holder, which we then fastened to the holder by one nail through the bottom nail hole in the hinge which allows the board to end gate to drop down out of the way. This is quite a convenience, as it is out of the way and is not liable to be broken off by a sheep running against it. This board is marked D in the cut. This door is fastened shut by a small hook which goes over the nail in the end of the door.

We then found that we must strap our sheep in the holder to make them secure. So we nailed straps to the boards B, C, two straps to go over the sheep's back and two straps to go under the sheep's belly. These straps as shown in the sketch, are marked E, N. They can be made adjustable by putting any number of holes in the straps which may be found necessary for the size of the sheep which the holder is to accommodate. Four different straps are used for this purpose, one end being securely nailed to the board on the one side and the other end being slipped over a nail, which makes it a very convenient fastening.

For making the iron rods stay in place we fastened a wooden button, as it is called, which holds the rods in their place. We then inclosed the front end by nailing boards on slanting. This makes the holder much more rigid than it would be were the boards nailed on straight across; the boards form a very good brace in this way.

Hogs Affected by Temperature. In spite of the hog having a thick skin, he is easily affected by temperature. He should have warm quarters in winter and cool quarters in summer. The latter should be always free from dust, as dust in the lungs of the hog is a fruitful source of trouble. In the colder parts of the United States hogs are too often neglected in the matter of quarters and are forced to occupy drafty situations. They are sometimes even left without bedding. Hogs sleeping on bare boards are not only uncomfortable, but are losing much of the heat of their bodies. This means discomfort and loss of food that escapes in the form of heat. The hogs should always have an abundance of bedding.

Mortality Among Ducks. The causes of mortality among young ducks may be summed up as follows: Overheat, dampness, getting wet, lack of grit, gray head lice, sudden showers, delayed hatches, exposure to sun, lack of fresh water, drinking vessels too shallow, and breeding out of condition.

Give Variety. Variety of feed and palatability is almost as important as quality. It is not always how much feed an animal eats that makes the gains but it is the quality of that feed and the way it is relished.

From all the American tests it appears fair to say that there is no marked advantage in grinding grain for healthy horses that have good teeth.

Don't feed moldy or decomposed feed.

Barley as a Hog Ration. Barley is very rich in the lungs for the production of prime pork and especially for prime bacon. This grain has not yet come into favor in America as a swine food, but it is one of the principal foods used by Danish farmers, and the pork made on that kind of ration sells at a high price in all markets. Danish bacon, which has such a high reputation in the European market, is made largely on barley and dairy products. The Ontario experiment station years ago decided that it was one of the best swine foods that could be secured. There it is regarded as a grain that should constitute one-third of the ration when the best bacon is to be produced.

Gentle Cattle. Kindness, resulting in gentle cattle, pays both from the humane standpoint and the dollars and cents standpoint.

Silage in medium amounts is a satisfactory feed, provided the animals are gradually accustomed to it.

Millet and young sorghum is often poisonous. The poison is due to small amounts of prussic acid.

Poor shoeing of horses causes great inconvenience and sometimes great pain to the animals.

Farm horses to be most serviceable should be of medium weight and of quick movement.

Horse dealers south of here report that horses were never more scarce than at the present time, and it is impossible to supply the demand. Offers Them a Bible.

Appleton Crescent:—The Rev. George E. Dewey of Grand Rapids, Wis., will give Outragamie county a Bible, if the proper official applies to him for a copy of the Good Book.

The Rev. Dewey made this statement to a Crescent reporter Friday afternoon, and as he will leave the city again Monday, if the authorities want a Bible at the court house, they should apply to him today or tomorrow. He is a guest at the home of Rev. Wilbur L. Clapp, of the Baptist church, at 782 Drew street.

The reverend gentleman who makes this generous offer to our county is the article headed "OUR BIBLE OWNED BY THIS COUNTY." He is acquainted with this city for a few days, having come here yesterday from Grand Rapids, Wis., where he departed Monday in wagon No. 6 of the American Baptist Publication society, stopping over night at farm houses along his route.

In this wagon Mr. Dewey carries the state, selling and giving away, to those unable to purchase, Bibles and other books of a religious nature. He pays particular attention to districts far from churches or in which there is little chance to procure the Good Book and good reading. He carries the book in five languages, English, German, Norwegian, Swedish and Polish.

In other parts of the country the wagons carry the books in the language most prevalent among the population of the particular section. In all there are fifty two wagons, ways traveling over the United States, distributing religious and secular literature, reaching many who could not be reached by the churches and could be reached in no other way so effectively.

The Rev. Dewey's headquarters are in Grand Rapids, headquartering the Baptist church Sunday.

Her Gift to Church.

Mrs. Valentine Gomerling of the town of Freedom, Outagamie county, is believed to be the mother of the most religious family in Wisconsin. She is the mother of ten children, nine daughters and one son. Six of the daughters are now nuns in the order of the school sisters de Notre Dame, while the other three daughters will join the order as soon as they are old enough, one of whom will take the veil the coming summer and the other two next year.

The only son is a Catholic priest, being Rev. Father Gomerling of Grand Rapids, where he is very popular in his parish. The mother is perfectly satisfied that her daughters and son should devote themselves and their lives to the religious orders in the Catholic church and her husband, who died ten years ago and during whose lifetime four of the daughters entered the convent, agreed with her that they were singularly honored and highly blessed.

May Have a Baseball Team.

Merrill News:—This week a number of men have come to the front saying that they would undertake the work of securing funds amounting to about $500 by subscription to have a baseball team for this city during the coming summer. They have stated that the money would be gotten together next Monday and put on deposit in the bank. If such an amount is raised it means that Merrill will have a baseball team again this summer, and that a game will be played here as soon as the players are gathered together.

If the subscription money is gotten together the first of next week it will afford a valuable opportunity for the local manager of the team to secure players as the different teams in the state league have tried their players and are now ready to "farm" them out. In this way Merrill could have a good team selected, and a good article of ball would be played here this year.

A Boy's Remembrance.

Circus time always brings back recollections of youth. When we were boys the circus used to travel over land. All big circuses at the present time travel by rail. All of us boys remember that it was the early bird who got the worm of the long train of cars and the fellow who saw the circus and unloaded and drawn into the lot where the cows were pitched had to get up mighty early in the morning. The cows were milked and taken to the pasture unusually early so there might be nothing to interfere with the boys' whole time being spent looking at the show. The outside of most of these big aggregations is just as interesting as the inside. He must see them both and he is not satisfied, really satisfied, until he can see the first stake driven and the last tent pulled down and the big wagons and elephants loaded on the train. When the circus is gone watch for a trapeze in the barn, a ring in the door yard and slinky Rover caged for a lion; faithful Dobbin with rosin on his back in training for harchback stunts and the juvenile population of the neighborhood agree over Johnny and Willie's Combined Shows of the Earth. You will hear breathless tales of thrilling acts and yield count down pins for admission tickets. We were all young once and he or she is a happy man or woman who dare not forget that about the kindest thing a boy can remember about his father is that he always took him to the circus. When a man is so engrossed in business that he does not want to go to a show he is in pretty deep and he had better take a day off if he wants to live very long, and if he never went to a circus when he was a boy and had a real good time we pity him. The only way he can get even is to make the children happy and win their everlasting gratitude, take them to Gullmar Bros' Leading Shows of the World, Triple Circus, Roman Hippodrome and all-features Menagerie.

REMOVAL NOTICE!

I am pleased to inform my many friends and patrons that I shall move my furniture stock about May 1st from my present location to the brick building occupied for many years by Spafford and Cole, and for the past eighteen months by J. T. Schumacher as a general store.

The reason for this change is that my business has outgrown its present quarters and I find it necessary to secure more room.

My new location is a solid two story structure, with two adjoining buildings which will give me ample space for storage and a chance to display my stock advantageously.

SEEDING COMMENCED IN WESTERN CANADA.

The Prospects for a Large Acreage to Be Sown in Wheat.

St. Paul, April 24, 1907.—Word has been received at the office of the Canadian Government in St. Paul that seeding has commenced at various points throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The heavy snowfall during the past winter has left the ground in splendid shape for a special seeding operation. This fine weather of the past few days has taken much of the frost out of the ground and during next week there will scarcely be a district in which the seed is not being sown. The most optimistic conditions exist, and in all the districts the farmers are busy getting things in shape. There will be a very large acreage sown in spring wheat, oats and barley. Many points throughout the three provinces the newcomers are busy unloading their stock and effects, working hard and day in order to get on their feet and become active agents in the effort to make the year that the bumper year in grain producing in Western Canada. As compared with districts many hundred miles further south than this it will be seen that the Canadian lands among the first in the line of seeding operations for the present year. It is said that the farmers who got in their seed before the 20th or 21st of May, will receive a magnificent harvest. A number of the seeders in this spring, and of the first land prepared last fall, will break up enough land to get a crop of oats and barley and probably some flax. This, together with the vegetables they will plant, will give them ample food for themselves and their stock during the summer months. The early seeding operation is not confined to one district, but is spread over a country 500 miles long by 100 miles in width.

The agents of the Canadian Government, located at different points throughout the west, are busy with the work of giving information regarding the various districts that are being made available for settlers. Low rates of transportation and literature are being given in application to the agent, who make a large use of advertisement in the papers in this paper.

No Criticism to Make.

Miss Della Williams, the English society girl, who was talked at a dance in New York about the fashion of riding astride that has taken hold of English society, was asked by one of our young women, "and Miss Williams, 'dressed out and out like a man'—was a long cut out like a man's coat, a cap, riding breeches and boots?" It is a handsome costume, and it is not in the least out of the way. They have been telling in London for a year about an English girl who had adopted this riding habit. "But if you hurry you may get it before it floats away."

FRIENDS HELP.

St. Paul Park Incident.

"After drinking coffee for breakfast I always felt languid and dull, having no means to get to my morning duties. The coffee was a weak, nervous dehydrant of the heart and stomach would come over me with such force I would frequently have to lie down. "At other times I had severe headaches, stomach finally became affected and I began to lose weight. The State President of the W. C. T. U. told me she had been greatly benefited by quinine coffee and using Postum Food Coffee; she was troubled for years with asthma. She said it was the best coffee she had ever had. She found she could have as delicious an article as Postum."

"Another lady, who had been troubled with chronic dyspepsia for years, found immediate relief on ceasing coffee and beginning Postum twice a day. She was wholly cured. My husband told me that Postum Food Coffee was a Godsend to her, her heart trouble having been relieved after leaving off coffee and taking Postum. "So many such cases came to my notice that I concluded that this was the cause of my trouble and I quit and took up Postum. I am more than pleased to say that my days of trouble have disappeared. I am well and happy. "There is a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pgs.

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By HERBERT NICHOLSON

I turned to stand face to face with the girl in the red tulle shanter. "I beg your pardon," I said, stepping away from the range. She did not stir the covert coat of the morning, but a red knit jacket, buttoned tight about her. She was young with every emphasis of youth. A pair of dark blue eyes examined me with good-humored curiosity. She was of the good form with the sun-baked skin and the brown of her hair, an eloquent of companionship with the outdoor world—a certificate indeed of the favor of Heaven. Show me, in October, a girl with a face of tan, whose hands have played a paddle or driven a golf ball or cast a javelin, and I will suffer her scorn in joy. She may vote no dull and refute my wisest word with laughter, for hers are the privileges of the sketched of Diana; and that soft bronze, those daring, freckled cheeks, those laughing eyes, her to him, when she looked upon his red and all the days were long.

Her rubber-soled outfit shoes had made possible her silent approach, and she enjoyed, I was sure, my discomfort at being taken unawares. I had snatched off my cap and stood waiting beside the fireplace, feeling, I must admit, the little girl at being caught in the unwarranted inspection of another person's property—particularly a person so wholly pleasing to the eye.

"I believe—I believe that is my paddle," she said, a little timidly I thought, and yet with definiteness. "I have looked down and found to my annoyance that I held her paddle in my hand," was in fact leaning upon it with a cool air of proprietorship. "Again, I beg your pardon," I said. "I hadn't expected."

She eyed me enviously, with the stare of the child that arrives at a drawing-room door by mistake and scrutinizes the guests without awe. I didn't know what I had expected or had not expected, and she manifested no intention of helping me to explain. Her short skirts suggested 15 or 16 years, and the girl being the case there was no reason why I should not be master of the situation. As I fumbled my pipe the red heels of tobacco turned my hand and I cast the thing from me.

She laughed a little, then caught herself and gravely reached the pipe bound from the desk into the water. "Too bad," she said, her eyes upon it; "but if you hurry you may get it before it floats away."

"Thank you for the suggestion," I said. But I did not relish the idea of kneeling on the floor to pick up the pipe of a strange school girl who was, I felt sure, anxious to laugh at me. She took a step toward the line by which her boat was fastened. "Allow me."

"If you think you can—safely," she said, and the laughter that lurked in her eyes annoyed me. "The forbidden knot is designed for the confusion of men," I observed, twirling vainly at the rope, which was tied securely in unfamiliar loops. She was singularly unresponsive. The thought that she was probably laughing at my clumsiness did not make my fingers more pliant.

"The nautical instructor at St. Agatha's is undoubtedly a woman. This knot must be in the post-graduate course. But my gallantry is equal, I trust, to your patience." She scorned the hand I extended, and embarked with light, confident step and took the paddle. It was growing late. The shadows in the wood were deepening; a chill crept over the water, and beyond the tower of the chapel, the sky was bright with the glory of sunset.

With a few skillful strokes she brought her little craft beside my pipe, which she deftly caught on the paddle blade and tossed to the wharf. "Perhaps you can pipe a tune upon it," she said, dipping the paddle. "You put me under great obligations," I declared. "Are all the girls at St. Agatha's as amiable?"

"I shouldn't say so! I'm a great exception—and I really shouldn't be talking to you at all! It's against the rules! And we don't encourage smoking."

"The chaplain doesn't smoke, I suppose."

"Not in chapel; I believe it isn't done! And we rarely see him anywhere else."

She had idled with the paddle so far, but now she lifted her eyes and drew back the blade for a long stroke. "But in the wood, this morning—by the wall!"

I hate myself to this day for having so startled her. The poised blade dropped into the water with a splash; she brought the canoe a little nearer the wharf with an almost imperceptible stroke, and turned toward me with wonder and dismay in her eyes. "So you are a cave-dweller and detective, are you? I beg that you will ing visitors appealed to my sense of humor. I stepped to the front stairway, ran lightly down, found the front door, and from the inside, opened and slammed it. I heard instantly a hurried scamper above, and the heavy fall of one who had stumbled in the dark. I grunted with relief, hastened to the great library, which was as dark as a well, and, opening one of the long windows, stepped out on the balcony. At once from the rear of the house came the sound of a steady step, which increased to a run at the palace. I listened to the flight of the fugitive through the wood until the sounds died away toward the lake.

Then, turning to the library window, I saw Bates, with a candle held above his head, peering about. "Hello, Bates," I called cheerfully. "I just got home and stepped out to see if the moon had risen. I don't believe I know where to look for it in this country."

He began lighting the tapers with his usual deliberation. "It's a trifle early, I think, sir. About eight o'clock, I should say, was the hour, Mr. Glenorm." There was, of course, no doubt whatever that Bates had been one of the men I heard in my room. It was wholly possible that he had been compelled to assist in some lawless act against his will; but why, if he had been forced into aiding a criminal, should he not invoke my own aid to protect himself? I kicked the logs in the fireplace impatiently at my uncertainty. The man slowly lighted the many candles in the great apartment. He was certainly a deep one, and his case grew more puzzling as I studied it in relation to the rifle shot of the night before, his collision with Morgan in the wood, which I had witnessed; and now the house itself had been invaded by some one with his connoisseur. The rifle shot might have

State Capital Notes

Weekly Budget Gathered by Our Special Correspondent at Madison.

Compulsory Education.

A measure that is attracting more than usual attention is the proposed amendment to the compulsory education law, as yet in the hands of the education committee. The proposed change affects all children of the state between the ages of seven and 14 years. Under the present law, the compulsory period is eight months of schooling in cities and 20 weeks in the country districts. The proposed change is to make the year of pupils living two miles or more from a school house. This law also provides for truancy officers. General complaint has been made that there is a lack of enforcement of the law.

The committee has been obliged to consider many conditions in seeking to arrive at an equitable and necessary compulsory law. Statistics were presented to prove that 94 per cent of the children between the ages of seven and 14 years are in school. The children of the farming sections and villages but 70 per cent attend.

U. of W. Student List 3,600. The new catalogue of the University of Wisconsin, now in press, shows a total enrollment of 3,600 students, the largest number in the history of the university. It is estimated that next year will be 3,750. With 250 students the total university population is over 4,000. This is a large population for the 1905 state census gave to Ripon, Sparta, Lake Geneva, Port Washington, Hudson, and other cities of the state.

The college of engineering has 720 students, a gain of 31 over last year. Of them 167 are studying electrical engineering, 166 civil engineering, 30 mechanical engineering, 71 general engineering and 27 chemical engineering.

University After Money. The educational committee has been hearing university appropriation bills. Former Assistant Secretary of State Fred M. Blair, is said to have prepared an address on the financial and educational practices at the university. In its preparation he has gone into the statistical information necessary to make statements that are accurate to be something bordering upon the sensational.

Welcome State Inquiry. It is said that the officials of the Wisconsin veterans' home have requested a legislative investigation of the home on the charge of mismanagement. A former inmate, Col. J. H. Woodworth, commander of the home, and Dr. B. H. Bailey, surgeon, have in Madison and it is understood that while there they both said that a thorough investigation was indicated.

Many School Bills In. A total of 112 bills of various import, all affecting the school system, have been introduced into the legislature. The bills are of various import, all affecting the school system, have been introduced into the legislature.

No Change in Ward Laws. The assembly, which the Legislature is now considering, has decided to make no change in the ward laws. The assembly, which the Legislature is now considering, has decided to make no change in the ward laws.

For State Aid to Roads. The senate resolution providing for an amendment to the constitution to enable the state to construct and improve highways was favorably reported. A bill providing for the employment of convicts in the construction of highways was recommended for indefinite postponement.

Learn to Avoid Danger. The committee on state affairs introduced a new bill prohibiting the presence of minors in saloons. The bill reads as follows: "No keeper of any saloon, shop or place of any name whatever for the sale of any strong, spirituous or malt liquor, or any quantity less than one gallon, shall permit or allow any person under the age of 21 years to be present in his saloon or shop or place."
